

I feel that the rights of the XM broadcasters will be violated on a number of levels if the radio was the only source for trafic and weather. What gives the radio the sole ownership of trafic rights and weather. The money that I pay in order to recieve the XM signal is to recieve a premium service above that possible with radio. If the radio stations had the ability to provide the same quality service it would be a different story. The XM providers have made the commitment to a particular nitch in the market and have raised the standards of braodcasting. The radio needs to rethink their broadcasts content to maximize their audience otherwise, like many other businesses in this country, they will be obsoleted. XM is far and away superior to the radio, as demonstrated by the signal available on all 150+ stations

Eric Goes